

Program

7:35 pm Introduction By Angelo

7:40 pm Tressa Glover—Yinz Are Good! Podcast

7:45 pm Representative For Good PGH

7:50 pm Morgan Kasprovicz Great Pittsburgh Arts Council

SAYIN'

Good Samaritans by Scott Burke

Telemarketing Gone Right by Sarah Rose

9 Lives by Todd Shaffer

Going to Camp by Stephen Cooper

Plastered by Angelo

INTERMISSION

TRUTH OR LIE

Yinz Have Got to be Kidding Me by Alan Lantzy

Trax Farms by Pam Latta

Flying Air Conditioners by staci b

The Little Mermaid by Peggy McGarry

9:15 pm Questions & Comments

9:30 pm Curtain!

Storytelling is live performance, so we ask that you remain seated and silent during the telling of the story.

For more information on the Yinz Are Good Podcast, visit:

<https://www.yinzaregood.com/>

Sayer Bios

staci b's artistic journey began in earnest when she left the corporate world in 1998 to become a writer. Her love of telling tales spans novels, short stories, creative non-fiction, poetry and plays, as well as performing as a storyteller.

D. Scott Burke has always been inspired and intrigued by the myths of Irish bards. His mother always told him he had his father's gift of sales, but he now knows it is a passion for storytelling that drives his love of connecting with people.

Stephen Cooper is a Clinical Nurse Educator and part-time Jedi Knight. His attention deficit career path has included stints as a forest firefighter, PE teacher, community educator, and a Moth GrandSLAM participant.

Angelo Creo, aka Bob, is an attorney specializing in dispute resolution. He is the founder and principal of Steel City Storytellers, LLC. Angelo tells stories about his own life experiences— the wacky, the weird, and the wonderful.

Alan Lantzy was born in a small Appalachian coal mining town during the Truman administration. Now a retired pediatrician and neonatologist, he has been in Pittsburgh for more than 50 years.

Pamela Latta is a bon vivant, raconteur and stand-up , who's appeared on the Risk Show with Kevin Allison and the Moth Radio hour on NPR. She's been seen on a number of stages including the Old Arcade Theater in Pittsburgh.

Peggy McGarry hails from a big Irish family in Buffalo NY. In Pittsburgh since the 90s, she now works for WestPenn/Cal U's Global online. Her greatest joys are her four grandies, three greatgrandies, Irish Ceili dancing, kayaking, and her latest adventure into storytelling.

Sarah Rose is a spoken word artist living on the sunny side of Pittsburgh. She is ranked among the top female poets in the city , has competed at the National Poetry Slam in Atlanta GA and has competed in The Moth storytelling series.

After years of writing and illustrating funny greeting cards (genuinely funny, not lame funny), Todd Shaffer decided to try the terrifying world of open mike storytelling, which has led to winning multiple Moth Story Slams..

If you'd like to be considered to be a Sayer, please email us at SteelCityStorytellers@gmail.com.